-EDITORS APPEAL—I am is a fearful dilemma. After reading that young lady's "extract of censure," published in the columns of the APPEAL, I determined to change my whole course of life, and seek one of that kind of girls she so beautifully describes. My mind's eye fell upon one immediately. I thereupon solemnly deciared to myself that I would turn my whole heart, soul and thought toward her, and for fear that I might have something in my possession that would share each of these (my) might have something in my possession that would share each of these (my) attributes with her, I commenced to destroy everything I had formerly loved. I began by throwing out of my window a box of choice Havanas, a present from an esteemed friend in New Orleans. Then all of my fine chewing tobacco followed the box of cigars. Next came my beautiful cane, which I broke into small fragments, and taking the pieces I made a small fire of them on the During the afternoon the various polls in the city were largely attended by voters, who in many instances were compelled to select from ten, and even sixteen tickets. Owing to the large number of gentlemen put forward as candidates, much labor and great diligence have attended the counting of ballots, but an official report of the election in the city and county cannot be assertained until this afternoon. According to instructions, the committees small fragments, and taking the pieces I made a small fire of them on the hearth. As the smoke rose up and floated slowly away above the city I spoke to the burning remnants thus: "Farewell, my beautiful cane, companion of many an idle, lonely hour, farewell! Upon the altar of love I offer thee, a willing sacriflee." And that is not all. I had a beautiful terrier which was all devotion and fidelity to me. I siew. And lo? after making all these was all devotion and fidelity to me. I slew. And lot after making all these sacrifices, the thought just then, for the first time, entered my brain, that I was not acquainted with the young lady. I began to run over my list of friends and acquaintances to see if any of them were acquainted with heavy of them were heaven) I find that not one of them enjoy the pleasure of ber acquaintance. Can you not give me some advice and consolation.

The primary election for delegates to the Bartlett convention, which assembles in this city on the second of next month, was held yesterday. So far as we have been able to ascertain, there was much interest manifested, both in the city and throughout the county. During the afternoon the various polis in the city were largely attended by voters, who in many instances were compelled to select from ten, and even sixteen tickets. Owing to the large ascertained until this afternoon. According to instructions, the committees in the respective districts and wards will make their returns to-day to Mr. Hossa Townsend, chairman of the county executive committee. His office is in the Ayres building, Second street, opposite Court square, and will open as eight o'ciock this morning for the reception of returns. At the present writing it is impossible to tell who have been elected delegates, and no reliable information can be expected before our issue of tomorrow. At present it is enough to stimulate all with zeal, and add to the generous interest manifested by the public for the coming success of the Bartlett platform. The Returns.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO, MASS., June 9, 1861. MESSRS. BURNETT & Co.—When my daughter's hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Co-coaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months her hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Coconine in connection with the Kalliston, and we have but little fear of her losing her hair. With respect, wm. s. EDDY.
